

A+P House Meilen

The various volumes forming the house are linked to a central core, which also serves as a four-level library. All rooms are directly connected to this focal point, which thus becomes the most significant space of the house. Generous balconies, located at different levels, extend interior spaces according to various orientations. This valorizes views over the landscape.

Section | The volume makes the basic building's structure

Ground floor plan | The fluid spaces allow spacious living experience

Situation | The house has its main volume in the south part of the plot
