

Transformation of the former Cadolles Hospital - New Building Neuchâtel

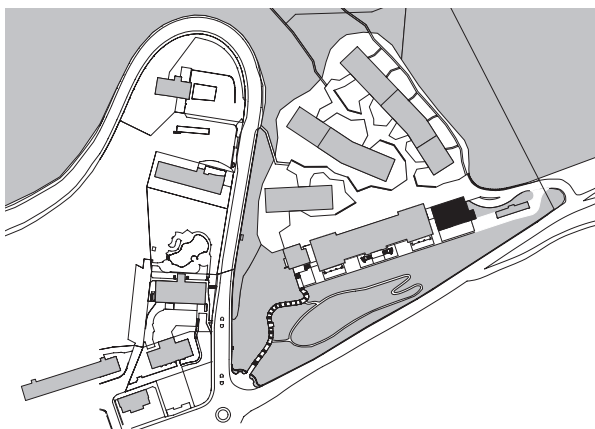

The old Jean-Jaquet pavilion, formerly located on the eastern side of the main building, was demolished to make room for a new construction. The latter is situated in close proximity to the park and the forest. This new building of resolutely contemporary architecture was designed in a spirit of dialogue and complementarity between the neighboring transformed buildings. The project includes a large apartment on the ground floor, directly overlooking the park, three stories comprising two apartments each and a penthouse on the last floor.
